JERRY GREENWELL NAMED CEO OF CPS HUMAN RESOURCE SERVICES

Sacramento, CA—The CPS Board of Directors has selected Jerry Greenwell as CEO for CPS Human Resource Services, a joint powers agency (JPA), providing testing, consulting, and executive search services to public agencies in North America. Prior to being named CEO, Greenwell served as the organization's deputy executive director and was responsible for overseeing brand, marketing, business development, and technology.

With over 20 years of experience in the public and social services fields and more than 15 years of experience in the areas of training and staff development, performance management, recruitment and selection, and organizational development, Greenwell's leadership, experience, and extensive human resources acumen will help further CPS' expansion across the country.

"I am quite honored to serve this great organization as its leader," said Jerry Greenwell, CEO for CPS Human Resource Services. "CPS has an exceptional, values-based culture where there are high expectations for behavior and performance, tremendous respect for the individual contributions of our employees, and a commitment to a collaborative decision-making process which ultimately allows us to better serve our clients."

As CEO, Greenwell will focus on business development, market growth, and strategically positioning CPS for further expansion while maintaining the core values that are the foundation of its success.

In the last five years, CPS has opened two new offices (Wisconsin and Washington, D.C.), has been awarded contracts with the Department of Homeland Security and the National Institute of Health, and has expanded its products and services to include executive search.

“We are very pleased with our selection of Jerry as the new CEO. Over the years, the Board of Directors has watched Jerry develop into the leader he is today. His commitment to CPS and its culture and values will enable him to build upon the success of his predecessors,” said David Hill, Chair of the CPS Board of Directors and HR Director for the City of Anaheim.

Prior to joining CPS, Greenwell spent nine years at Monterey County, Department of Social Services. He served as a supervisor over grant programs and trained eligibility workers to compute budgets and efficiently manage clients, served as a foster care program supervisor where he was responsible for hundreds of children, and was eventually promoted to program analyst where he managed the Medi-Cal program for the County.

Greenwell has a Bachelor of Science degree in sociology from the University of Utah and a Master’s degree in management and organizational development from John F. Kennedy University. He is a Certified Human Resource Professional through the International Public Management Association (IPMA) and a Professional in Human Resources through the Society for Human Resources (SHRM).

Greenwell is an alumnus of Leadership Sacramento, a Senior Fellow of the American Leadership Forum (ALF), and represents CPS on the IPMA Professional Development Committee and the National Forum for Black Public Administrators Corporate Advisory Council. Currently, Greenwell serves as the Chairman of the Board of Crossroads Diversified Services, Inc. Greenwell and his wife Toni have three children and reside in Roseville, California.
